Dear Harold,

I spoke with my friend who was looking for a college girl, and she has to have a girl, because of the room arrangements. I wasn't clear about the situation anyhow, because it would involve a major re-shuffling even if a girl were found. Sorry that one didn't work out.

I don't have a typewritter table, but surely we can find one here without much hubbub.

Right now I cannot come up with a single idea, dammit, but I'll keep thinking. I have a friend who works for a realty company...maybe we could slide you in and out of vacant apts. You are going to be here at the very worse time of the year as you will coincide with Mardi Gras, and everyone is booked to the last available cot. I'm looking for sleeping room during that time as we have over-invited out of town friends.

Something will provide itself.

Happy New Year to you and your wife.

Betsy
